A Change Of Direction

The Class of 1989 was the last class to have been in high school during both the "old" and "new" administrations. Over the past few years, this class has witnessed the numerous changes which have occurred. There have been changes in every aspect of school life — academics, groups, sports, student life and people. This book has been designed to point out the several changes which have taken place. The yearbook staff hopes that you enjoy its portrayal of a change of direction.

student life 89

What is Student Life? This is a seemingly simple question, but there are about as many answers to it as there are students at Westboro High. We can look at the "student" part of it; it is true that our main purpose for being here at 8 A.M. every morning is to learn. But if you asked the typical W.H.S. student this question, rarely would you receive "academics" as an answer.

Student life then, must reach beyond the classroom. Sometimes it takes the form of "hanging out" on each class' balcony exchanging the latest gossip. Other times it is in the form of events such as hockey games, dances, and carwashes. Student life is the common thread that holds the school together. It's an attitude we all share towards the school, ourselves, and each other. It is elfing on the day before Christmas vacation, suffering through drivers ed., tailgating before football games. It is the universal sigh of relief on Friday afternoon at 2:22.

So while it may be difficult to define Student Life in one phrase or idea, if you are a student, you know what it is all about. Sometimes it is working together on a common project, goal or idea. Sometimes it is sitting in the library wondering why there is an alarm on the door. It is us — the students of Westboro High. And while school itself is only from 8:00 to 2:22, student life never ceases in four years of fun, frustration, excitement, boredom, and change.

▶ Underclassmen can only admire the senior balcony from the distant third floor. Junior Pat McGinn knows he only has a couple more months before he will be admired.

▼ Even though each class has their designated balcony, seniors pretty much have their choice of hangouts between classes. Here, seniors, Rachel Irwin and Kim Broadwell, stop to chat before class on the junior balcony.

Our Support System

As outsiders enter the lobby of Westborough High School they probably notice something odd about the school rather quickly. Part of the second floor and most of the third floor is lined with students. If asked what's going on, any student or teacher would reply that it is the traditional balcony scene. Each class has claimed their territory along the balconies. The juniors, proud to be upperclassmen, hang out in front of the foreign language rooms. From here they can take notice of the action happening on the senior balcony below them. Puddles form as they drool with envy remembering that they have yet only one more year at WHS. Sophomores, relieved no longer to be 'shmen, reside outside the English rooms and teachers' room. From here, they enjoy heckling the freshmen and acting proud to no longer be the youngest in the school. A few daring freshmen emerge outside room 305 in the morning. Most, however, kill time at their lockers or in their homerooms waiting for the start of first hour. Lastly there is the senior balcony. This, of course, is on the second floor separated from the underclassmen. This is so they can be admired and envied from all other balconies.

Balconies serve as a general meeting place; a spot where you can become a part of your class. Here is where the latest rumors spread like wildfire; who dumped who, who scooped who, who is mad at who, basically who's who. If you are not gossipping with the girls or settling bets on the football game with the guys maybe you are spending your balcony time with your sweetheart. Much flirting goes on at the balconies and relationships begin. Last minute studying and vocab lessons are often being done here also. All this, just for attending school. What a price to pay to be a balcony bum.

▲ Upperclassmen are often the ones sending the strange looks to the freshmen. Looks like the freshmen took advantage of an opportune moment as our photographer tries to catch a few daring freshmen hanging out on the balconies.

▶ Overall balconies serve as a place to be a part of your class. Here the freshmen become a closer unit.

Boosting Our Spirit

This year's Booster Week started out in the traditional fashion of electing kings and queens for each class. They then began to compete by selling tickets to the Booster Game. Each class hoped that their king and queen would sell the most tickets. Friday afternoon all four classes assembled in the auditorium for the annual pep rally where each class tried to show the rest of the school how much spirit it had. The seniors, having had three years of practice, showed they had the most spirit, or at least the loudest voices. The week ended on a high note. The festivities began at 10:00 a.m. on Saturday, October 1, at the Junior High with the alumni soccer game followed by the parade through town. The cheerleaders and band marched as the kings and queens were driven in classic cars behind them. Then the football game began. At halftime, it was announced that Pete McLaughlin and Amy Bielski of the class of 1989 had won the ticket selling contest and they were crowned Booster King and Queen. The announcement of the recipients of the spirit awards for fall sports was postponed due to technical difficulties. The festivities ended with a crushing defeat of 13-0 over Wachusett. This was the first win for the team and it turned the season around for the Rangers.

▲ Following the cheerleaders, the marching band begins their trek to the high school football field in the annual Booster Parade.

▼The Conti Brothers have become Westboro High's regular dj's since the class of '89 hired them for their prom last spring. The two chat about what the next song is going to be as the students dance the night away to some great music.

▲Tom Gallen catches the attention of the photographer.

▲Dances would not exist unless dedicated teachers would voluntarily chaperone them for us. Mrs. Gore and Ms. Farley are only two of the brave teachers who have given up a Friday night to listen to loud music and watch us dance wildly in the lobby.

▶Sometimes crazy things get started during dances. Wild senior Marcus Borgia initiated a bunny hop at one of the dances and many chose to join in on the fun!

Get Into The Groove

◀You can work up quite a sweat dancing with your friends for 3 hours. The lobby gets heated up quickly when filled with crazy students!

▼Seniors aren't afraid to show their true personalities even when the camera is on them. In a rare McLaughlin catch our attention with their silliness.

Usually only a few days after the start of school posters go up announcing the first dance of the year. A Westboro High tradition is now in full swing. The excitement over the first dance is quite noticeable. Normally, it is sponsored by the senior class and draws the biggest crowd. It is often the only dance that seniors attend to support their class and make their appearance as official seniors. Dances continue throughout the fall and winter but very often don't exist in the spring due to the Junior Prom and Senior Ball. Dances at Westboro High come in a variety of fashions. Regular dances, costume dances and semiformal dances are just a few examples.

For 3 hours on a Friday night much more goes on besides dancing in the lobby. Underclassmen usually run wildly around the lobby hoping to possibly catch the attention of a junior or senior. Very few ever succeed at this though since many of the upperclassmen pay little attention to them and concern themselves with having a good time dancing with their friends. It is inevitable that you can find at least one girl in the bathroom in tears over the fact that so and so danced with someone else besides her. The bathroom is also a hot spot to gossip and lay out your plan of attack if you are a girl. On the dance floor class circles usually form and some crazy dancing usually takes place.

Teachers voluntarily give up their Friday nights to observe all of this and as long as they keep volunteering, dances at Westboro High will continue on each year. More than often a dj entertains for the evening but a few times bands have been used. At times the dj's have been WHS's very own students as was the case with the drama dance this year.

For the most part kids leave dances glad that they went with the exception of a few broken hearts. They are a profitable fundraiser and an entertaining way to spend a Friday night.

◀Freshmen know not to enter "senior circles" at dances but they manage to find a spot on the dance floor to show us what they can do. Jason Seltzer struts his stuff at one of the dances.

▲A common sight at dances was upperclassmen dancing on the bench in the lobby. Unfortunately the bench could not hold the students any longer and it snapped at the first dance. Guess they will just have to find a new "stage."

Powderpuff?

Traditionally the powderpuff game has been played to bring about school spirit and have fun. The senior girls challenged the junior girls to a game of flag football and the boys would cheer them on. The proceeds from the game would go to a charity.

This year, however, the game followed a somewhat different course. The competition itself really began the Monday before the game with the senior and junior team members hanging up sheets encouraging their teams and destroying those of the opposing class. As the week progressed, class spirit obviously strengthened as senior girls wore their homemade t-shirts displaying their pride and juniors wore headbands. Topping it all off, the Friday before the game, the seniors gathered at Abdow's while the juniors attempted to storm the senior balcony to psych themselves up for the main event. Throughout the day signs, sheets, and even a few balloon banners frequented the balconies but none lasted very long. By the break of school that afternoon the feeling was obvious that the teams' spirit had turned into a rivalry between the class of 1989 and class of 1990.

Saturday, November 19 finally arrived. The girls had been practicing all week for the game and were ready to play. It was common knowledge that the juniors were heavily favored to win. Shortly after the starting kickoff, junior Jen "GoGo" Gorak scored the first touchdown of the game and it didn't look good for the underdogs. However, that would be the only lead the juniors held throughout the game. The class of '89 quickly rose to the occasion and upset the juniors with touchdowns made by Kathy Rigsby, Kim MacLean, and Kate Whitin.

The junior and senior cheerleaders along with the announcers Mr. Cerasoli and Mr. Sharpe kept the fans amused while many whistles were blown and flags were thrown on the field for "foul play." The game itself was played with much more intensity than in years past; so much so that with halftime came the threat of aborting the game. Thanks to the efforts of the referees and coaches, Kasierski and Gebo, the energies of the combatants were redirected into having a good time.

With the final score being seniors — 30, juniors — 20 both teams laid down their rivalry and congratulated each other on a good game. The classes then separated and retreated to aftergame munchy parties at Kim MacLean's and Christie Foulke's houses. It will be quite awhile before the seniors let the school forget who won the powderpuff game for 1988.

▲Some of the senior team assembled for a pregame group picture on Friday. The smiles show they know how the game will turn out!

▶The senior girls thought they had a sure fire way to keep their sign away from the juniors. They forgot one minor little detail . . . String!

▼In an attempt to fake out the seniors Andrea Candela pretends to hand off to teammate Jen Gorak.

▲Who wears the pants around WHS? The senior guys organize themselves in skirts to amuse fans and cheer on the senior girls. An attempted pyramid was only one example of the many feats they set out to accomplish.

▲Kim Albert struggles to hold back Nicole Rheaume as the juniors take the offense.

▲A heated discussion (one of many) took place in the first half over senior Alison Koroski's removal from the game for "unnecessary roughness".

▶Holly Lightbody is convinced by Mr. Farrell (Chris Sheldrick) to confess her true feelings about the tooth fairy in a drama class scene.

FAME!

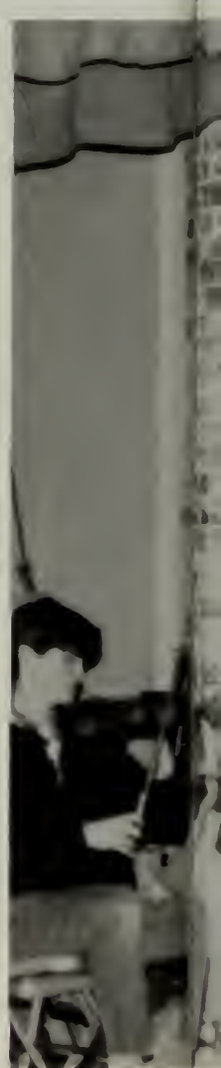
Approximately 60 enthusiastic students attended "FAME" tryouts in September. Director Lynne Erkinnen, Assistant Director, Susan Connell, Choreographer, Suzanne Purdue, and Producer Kathy Farley had their work cut out for them as they began the long task of assigning parts.

The cast, representing all four classes of the student body, began by working individually on their parts. Through the course of rehearsals, the characters of Doris, Leroy and Ralph came to life. Eventually the cast began to come together as a unified cast.

FAME turned out to be a good choice since it was able to effectively showcase several aspects of WHS talent. The areas of music and dance were highlighted as an original composition by Josh Buswell accompanied the featured dancers in spectacular dances. Additional musical talent was displayed through solo "auditions" and a string ensemble. Monologues were worked into the plot and added touches of comedy as well as bringing the plot together.

The show itself was full of energy and involvement on the part of the audience and cast. The finale took place throughout the auditorium leaving a good impression on the viewers. FAME was a rewarding experience due to the efforts of the adult supervisors and the unique personality of the cast.

▲Doris (Laura Billmeyer) succeeds in convincing Leroy (Ron Bazillon) to try to learn something while attending the School for Performing Arts.



◀Coco (Jen Rochette) unsuccessfully attempts throughout the play to win the attention of Ralph (Chris Hamawi) who ends up falling for Doris.

▼Mrs. Schwartz (Amanda Grossman) walks sadly away from Doris after being ordered by Mr. Farrell to leave and take her camera with her.

◀Many talents were exhibited throughout the play. Dancing, acting, singing, and instrument playing were all very impressive. Here Professor Sherofsky (Jim Nolan) "conducts" the orchestra.

▲After the grand finale the cast members took a well deserved bow while unending applause echoed through the auditorium.

▼Matt Passler and Cindy Caldwell take a breather from the dance floor and check out all that is going on from the second floor balcony.

▼Chris Stevens and Rob Grady have to catch their breath and get a drink before getting back onto the dance floor to dance the night away.

▶Marcus Borgia and Todd Simpson make sure they let the photographer know they are having a great time at the ball. It obviously was a big hit!

▲At times certain individuals stood out on the dance floor to "show what they have got" as others looked on. Here, Shannon Allen shines in the spotlight.

▶Slow dances were few and far between but that made the dances that much more special. Darren Selznick and his date share one of those moments together and look around to see who else decided to get into the mood of the evening.

A Surprising Success

The 1988/89 Yearbook Staff thought they were going out on a limb by sponsoring a Holiday Ball this winter. Unsure of what the response would be and due to the lack of interest in the past years, the staff was a little hesitant. However, much to the amazement of the staff, the idea of the semi-formal dance was a big success. Tickets went fast and every last one (and then some) was sold.

Once dates had been finalized, the dresses were bought and reservations for dinner were made. The staff, along with a few other helpful seniors, then set out on the afternoon of December 16th to decorate the lobby into a festive setting. Thanks to Brian Byrne, the Civic Club donated an enormous tree to be set up in the lobby. The decorating crew had quite a difficult time getting it to stay in the tree stand but with everyone's effort and patience, the task was completed. White lights were wrapped around all the balconies to add to the mood of the evening and tables were set up around the second floor for refreshments. The lobby was finally set for the evening.

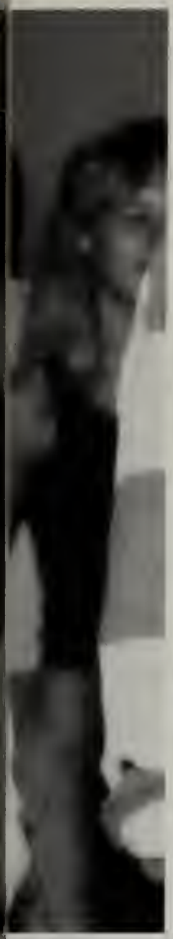
From 8:00 to 11:00 the lobby stayed filled with students dancing, singing, eating and having a good time. Most went to nice restaurants before the Ball and many got together afterwards to continue the enjoyable evening. The final outcome of the evening proved to be a complete success for the yearbook and for everyone who attended.

◀Dressed in a festive dress for the holidays, Sue Owen dances the night away.

▶ Brandy Jackman is completely amazed at the latest gossip that Brooke Taylor and Christie Foulke share with her and the yearbook photographer was there to capture the moment.

▼ Not only the students at WHS need support from time to time, teachers do too. Miss Spinney stops to chat with Mr. Hayes.

▲ Best buddies Mary Gallagher, Kari Bevis, Jen Nunez, and Kris Dirschel don't have to think twice about whether to pose for the camera.



◀ Mike Pierson and Steve Stuart chum around with one another between class. (below middle) Jennifer Longo and Kelly Crawford catch up on the day's events in study hall.

▲ Keith Dorschel and Mike LaPrade attempt a little rap at the prom but can't stop laughing long enough to get the words out.

◀ There's no saying your best friend has to be of the same sex. Cindie Demello and Dan King have been best friends and girlfriend and boyfriend for some time.

Helping Hands

There is no doubt about it — high school can get pretty rough. The pressure of academics, sports, "fitting in", drivers ed. — it can be enough to make a person lose hope from time to time. And that is when we realize how much we need friends.

High school is a time when people realize who their true friends are. In the midst of the confusion found from the traumas of the high school years, a friend is someone who lends a helping hand. Often friends can be seen consoling one another, sharing a good laugh, or leaning on each other for support.

As high school starts to wind down, we begin to realize how much of an impact our friends have had on our lives. Seniors reminisce about the "good old days", knowing that the unsure future will at some point force them to say goodbye to many of their friends. Finding friends like the ones we have known in high school hardly seems possible — friends who have been there for the fun, fights, laughter, and tears that these four years can bring.

Friendship is the bond that ties the school together. It is something that no outsider can fully grasp the meaning of — cruising the streets of Westboro together, sharing stories at the lunch table, wondering about the future together, and finally, marching out in cap and gown. How appropriate it is that we line up for graduation in groups of two — for none of us could have made it through these years without our friends.

academics 89

Academics has always been the most important part of Westboro High School. In these last few years, however, there has been even more emphasis placed on scholastic achievement. This increased attention to academics can be seen through the many changes made at the high school.

The first change was the addition of the seventh period. This subsequently eliminated the daily activity period. The extra period has allowed students to take classes beyond the basic requirements. Electives such as journalism, drama, psychology, and computers have been welcome diversions from a typical reading, writing, and arithmetic schedule. They allow students to experiment in different areas and discover new interests.

No matter what changes have been made in the school day, some things have remained the same. Ample homework is still assigned, oral reports must be presented, essays must be written, and of course, tests must be taken.

Some changes are good
Some changes are bad
But everyone knows for sure this is

A Change for the Better

Depending on who you ask, student or administrator, you may get different answers whether the many changes seen at WHS in the past four years have been beneficial or detrimental. Many students have expressed their unhappiness over some changes while faculty members praise them. One change obviously beneficial to the students, faculty, and community has been the increase in academic performance and achievement. An article appearing in the fall issue of Worcester Magazine reinforces this achievement. According to the article, "Westborough takes high honors," and, if graded, "Westborough would be taking home a report card that would make any parent proud." Principal Maureen Zolubos attributes the academic success to the "Grade A" community the school serves. She states Westborough has a "sense of pride and commitment to education that makes for good grades and enthusiastic students." Much of this improvement is a result of the faculty at WHS. Overall they are a group of caring, willing people who will go that extra mile for a student. They are committed to educating the future adults of this nation and feel a great amount of satisfaction when they see a student get one step closer to reaching a desired goal. The staff invests a lot of their time and energy in educating the student body. Not only do they teach in the classroom but they also encourage their students to further learn about their interests or hobbies. Most of the teachers have volunteered to advise the many extracurricular activities offered at Westborough High.

An impressive fact noted in Worcester Magazine is that "Westborough students have some of the highest mean SAT scores in the region." Above average percentages of Westborough students continue onto higher education after high school and a below average drop out rate also speaks highly of the Westborough School System.

The new administration has greatly influenced this impressive change over the past four years and it appears to be a trend which will probably only improve in the years to come. Congratulations Westborough!

▶Katie O'Neill tries to get in a healthy lunch and catch up on some reading in the brief twenty minutes of lunch she has before her next class.

▼Some students can get homework done in any surrounding but most have their own unique system. Jason Simmons needs to turn on his walkman and seclude himself in order to get some work done. Lunchtime is a prime time to get afternoon assignments completed. Students usually can't waste time in line and also get their studying done. So most, like Bill Ward, sacrifice the special of the day to finish the last few problems for his next class.

▲Although the purpose of study hall is to use some time to study, it is often difficult to accomplish much if your friends are also in open study with you. Mike Dean jokes around with Kim Wright in his study hall.

▶Rudy Soto tries to concentrate on his work but Bill Dalton and Nicole Spickler ltry to distract him away from his work.

◀A common place to find kids studying is on the benches in the lobby during lunch. It's usually a bit quieter than the cafeteria and more can get accomplished in the twenty-minute lunch period.

▼If you need peace and quiet to get your work done, the library is your best bet. Strict rules are to benefit students who want to get studying and homework done. Christa Lyons manages to get her assignment done without other students around to distract her.

There is no escaping it.
We are all plagued by it.
Through the four years at WHS,
Every student suffers his share of # Homework!

It spreads like a contagious disease from teacher to teacher. They suffer from a fever which causes them to assign outrageous amounts of homework. It seems to breed in the teacher's room where the teachers come in close contact with each other.

We, the student body, have not given up the fight and fortunately, we never will.

Since there is no cure, students must endure it. Let's face it, homework constitutes a large portion of our learning here at Westboro High. It provides extra time to learn and a chance to develop ideas on our own. The problem is the four letter ending — WORK! Sometimes teachers forget that we have lives outside of school. Sports, clubs, jobs, and family all take up our time in addition to schoolwork.

As a result, students end up studying wherever and whenever they get a chance. When study hall turns into social hour many disciplined students retreat to the library. The student who gets to school totally prepared is a rarity. The morning bus ride and cafeteria are havens for last minute work.

Through their high school development students learn advanced techniques for budgeting time and cramming. These methods are by no means cures. However, they can be welcome remedies to the busy schedules many of us hold down.

◀Senior study hall usually is not too noisy to get homework done. Kari Bevis and Mary Gallagher are able to study for an upcoming test without much disturbance.

Weird Science

Students are not required to take four years of science but usually after they have taken one course, they are apt to take another. Science is a difficult subject to get a grip on. All those equations to memorize, and all those muscles and bones to learn are far from easy. At Westboro High, though, there is a special group of science teachers who are determined to make the subject as enjoyable as they can. Anyone walking through the science wing might catch Mr. Field's science students talking to their skinned cats (better known as "Fifi"). A few rooms down the hall one might hear Mr. Cerasoli's renditions of "Marvin the Mole" or "The Elements Song". And National Chemistry Day has become a big todo at WHS over the years because it is a weird but fun approach to science. Across the hall Mr. Markvenas livens up his Physics classes by relating vague concepts to everyday occurances, like sports and cars, the students can understand. The science department is sympathetic to its students and wants them to be interested in what they are learning. Since the teachers try to make it interesting, the kids want to pay attention. So you see, it's obviously not just science, it's Weird Science and we thank all the science teachers for their strange methods.

▼ Riza Rivany takes his disection very seriously, making every cut as precise as possible.

▲ Mr. Markvenas's General Physics classes were tempted to drop that basketball on top of some passersby to see if they were alert and watching out for the ball moving at 9.8 m/s.

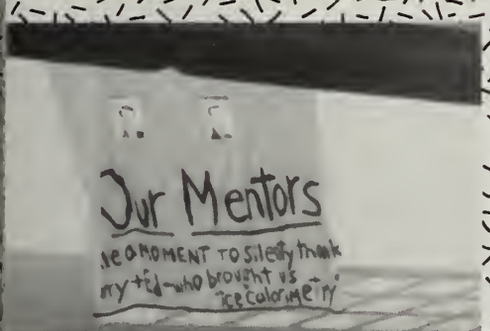
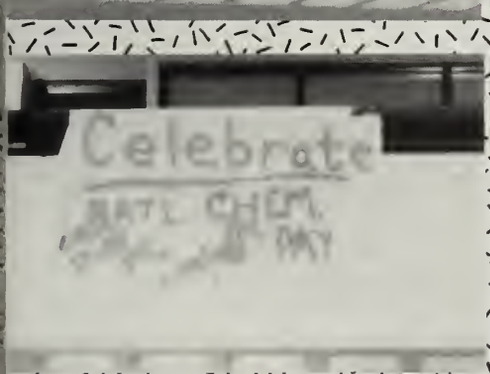
◀ Sean Donnelly pretends to act impressed at Mr. Cerasili's rendition of "Marvin the Mole." Don't worry Mr. C, he's a tough critic!

▼ Lisa Watson gets Fifi's teeth pearly white before she sends her to a formaldehyde bath.





▲ Sports teams and spirited classes are not the only enthusiastic people in the school. Some real excited chem students try to psych up the school on National Chemistry Day.

Hands Off!

It is important to remember that books are not the only sources of knowledge. Sometimes, it is more effective to learn by doing instead of by rote. The Industrial Arts, Fine Arts, Home Economics and Computer Departments provide this kind of learning environment. Whether it be creating a piece of pottery, using a drill, baking a cake, or keying in a program, the knowledge gained from "hands on" is invaluable. These classes help to improve skills, yet they allow for creativity. Every successfully completed project produces a feeling of pride and achievement within the creator. Each student instinctively protects his project by warning those around him to keep their hands off.

groups 89

Activities? Yes they still exist at Westboro High even though the disappearance of the activity period two years ago limited our choices. For those of us who remember three years ago when we could belong to a number of different clubs, we also remember having to choose our favorite one for the following years because there wasn't enough time for more than one. Now we have more time and energy for that one special club. Unfortunately some clubs were unable to overcome the loss of meeting time and participation. Luckily some new clubs have been able to find a following and have proved to be successful.

In the beginning of the year either students joined a group or chose to stay in a "quiet" study during those two activity periods in each month. Our choices ranged from square-dancing to student government. In each 30 minute period, clubs manage to get a lot done and always find ways to mix in plenty of fun. Most every club takes part in activities other than the meetings.

Whether in study, in the gym, in the computer lab, or in a club meeting, just about everyone's activity periods are spent constructively. Every activity has helped us to expand our horizons and to complete our education beyond academics.

Voice of the Voters

Student government at Westboro High involves a wide range of students who all share one common interest — the desire to better the school for the students and faculty. There are quite a few different groups involved with this idea in the school. SIC (School Improvement Committee), SAC (Student Advisory Council) and RSAC (Regional Student Advisory Council), class officers, and Student Council all concern themselves with the goings on and surroundings of the school. Each group meets during activity period or after school to get their responsibilities completed. SIC's purpose is to find the best possible places to spend school funding. Class officers spend their time thinking up ways to raise money for traditional class expenses and new ideas of doing class projects. They provide leadership for their class. Student Council is responsible for organizing the concession stand at football games, spirit week, the blood drive, and deciding what groups can sponsor fundraisers.

There are also other opportunities to become active in student government. Some of these are Boys and Girls State, Model Congress, and Student Government Day. These groups are more state-wide than school-wide.

Student government is the student's opportunity to have a say in what goes on in the school and to be a part in the decision making process that affects us everyday.

Spreading the Word

When students think of 'spreading the word," most immediately think of the latest gossip that they have heard while standing on the balcony. However, Westboro High School has a variety of ways of informing and entertaining the student body, along with the faculty and the general public, other than word of mouth. These methods range from audio-visual to the printed page, and they are all done by students.

The Audio-Visual Club, affectionately known as the A-V Club, has been expanding under the guidance of advisor David Robichaud and now includes its own television station, WHTV. The club teaches students how to produce their own masterpieces, dealing with everything from lighting the scenes to editing the film. A show called "In-Sync," produced by the students, appears weekly on the local cable channel. The members of the club do everything from taping plays and NHS induction ceremonies to giving live broadcasts, including color commentary, of Range football games.

Across the lobby and up a flight of stairs from the WHTV studio is the home of both The Imagist magazine and the school newspaper, The Lobby Observer. Many of us have seen the signs asking "What is the Imagist?" that were hanging in the halls. Well, now you will receive the answer. The Imagist is a literary magazine that is created by students under the guidance of Carl Sharpe. The magazine is designed to give creative students a chance to have their work published and to let them share it with other students. Students are encouraged to submit essays, poems, or other creative pieces to The Imagist staff. The staff then votes on the piece to determine if it will be published.

The home of the Imagist is also the home of the two-year old school newspaper. This is because Mr. Sharpe is also the faculty advisor to the Lobby Observer. The journalism class is responsible for writing the articles about the school and creating the paper. This year, the staff ran into a slight snag at the beginning, the new computer to be used for publishing the paper. Once the computer was finally set up, it was necessary to teach the students how to use it. However, once they learned, the staff was able to increase the publication of the newspaper and spread the word even faster.

The final word that students receive at the end of the year is the yearbook. Each year, the yearbook staff, made up of twenty seniors, works diligently to create a special book that preserves all the memories of the year. For the seniors, it is the last word that they will ever hear from the high school. Consequently, they want it to be full of everything that took place during the school year, from academics to class pictures to extra-curricular activities.

The staff attempts to do this by designing all the pages to include as many pictures as possible and also by writing the stories to include all the information there is to share with the school. By doing so, the yearbook staff, along with the members of the other clubs and activities, greatly helps to "spread the word."

Music

There's no doubt about it, Westborough High School is filled with many talented musicians and singers. For those individuals, WHS provides a wide range of award-winning musical groups. In the spring of 1988, the music students returned from Toronto with awards for Jazz Band, Concert Band, Mixed Chorus, and Concert Choir. Jazz Band were also champs at the district competition and took a bronze at the all-state competition.

There are several individuals who deserve congratulations for making districts. Members of the district chorus include Julie Griffin, Nancy Pendergast, Stephanie Borgia, Lisa Stager, Marie Brais, Leanne Doherty, Lisa Lividini, Mike Bacharz, Stephen Cook, Josh Buswell, Chris Gagnon, Russ Kassatly, Todd Gobeille, Jeff Rumbaugh, Brad Masters, Andrew Oikle, and Dan Sullivan. Tim Simcoe and Mark Messier were selected for jazz ensemble while Fred Horwitz, Daska Babcock, and Brian Wong were selected for orchestra. The district band included Deborah Boire, Elise Henderson, Jim Hamburger, Sue Barrett, and Michael Mello. Congratulations!

Some people weren't satisfied with only seven academic classes each day. These people joined the several extra-curricular academic clubs.

For those interested in foreign language, there was the International Club. In its second year, the club exposed its members not only to the languages, but the cultures of French, Spanish and German speaking countries.

Another club in its second year, the Math Club, attracted aspiring mathematics students. The club competed with other schools and came in third at the Bartlett High competition.

This was the first year for the Academic Decathlon. Under the leadership of Mr. Fredette and Ms. Libbey, the club came in ninth in the November competition.

Students who met both academic and extra-curricular requirements were selected to join the National Honor Society. This year's new members combined with last year's veterans to continue the tutorial program as well as run the basketball concession stand. Individually, each member was required to complete a service project each semester.

This year, as every year, WHS and club advisors provided students with the opportunity to learn above and beyond the seven period day.

Drama

Over the past three years, drama has become more popular. Previously, the only major production at WHS was the annual senior play. Thanks to the drama club, Center Stage, underclassmen now have a chance to develop their acting talents as well. Club production tryouts are open to the entire school so that everyone has the opportunity to be in the spotlight.

Center Stage's debut was the small-scale production of Murder Well Rehearsed in the spring of 1987. In the fall of 1987, Center Stage became a legitimate activity period club and it produced *M*A*S*H*. In February of 1988, Center Stage entered the Massachusetts High School Drama Guild Play Festival with Two Small Fries To Go. The club ended the year with a performance of Pyramus and Thisbe at theMadrigal Dinner.

This year, Center Stage's production not only provided parts for those who act, but for those who sing, dance, and play musical instruments. Without a doubt, Fame was Center Stage's biggest success. The club won the preliminary round at this year's play festival with the performance of The Wingless Butterfly and went on to the next round.

Awareness

Two popular and longstanding clubs at Westborough High do not involve government, media, music, or the arts. These two clubs — A.F.S and S.A.D.D — promote awareness both to their members and the rest of the school.

The American Field Service (A.F.S.) tries to promote international understanding among peoples of different nations as well as within the United States. It aims to increase openness to new ideas and different ways of life.

A.F.S. attempts to achieve its goals through student exchanges. Three Westborough students have had the opportunity to live abroad thanks to this organization. Senior Melissa Richards spent her junior year in Belgium and junior Amy Strack is spending the 1988-89 school year in France. Junior Janna Spinnazola spent the summer of 1988 in Spain. This year, Westborough High welcomed A.F.S. exchange student Riza Rivany from Indonesia.

Not all exchanges are international. Students from different areas in the U.S. are invited on exchange weekends. They spend a few days with host students and their families to experience the differences of lifestyles within the United States.

Students Against Driving Drunk (S.A.D.D.) had an extraordinary following this year. These students learned about the consequences of drunk driving and tried to make the rest of the school aware of them as well.

During the holiday season, S.A.D.D. members displayed their artistic talents when they painted holiday designs on the lobby windows. The artwork brightened up the lobby and got everyone into the holiday spirit, yet it also served as a gentle reminder not to drink and drive.

sports 89

Because our town is rapidly growing, it is ironic that the population at Westboro High School is at a low point. This year, the Midland League, which many of us have become accustomed to, has undergone a major change. For the first time, the league has been divided into two parts, "Big School" and "Small School". Westboro has been placed into the "Small School" division of the league, with the likes of Clinton, Hudson, and, of course, our good friends from Algonquin Regional High. The possibility of Westboro becoming a "Big School" in the coming years is there, especially if the town continues to grow at the rate it is right now.

The field hockey team, however, seems completely unfazed by the change in the league. This year the girls were able to capture their third consecutive Midland League Championship rather easily. The ice hockey team, also has had winning seasons for the past three years, appearing to have little trouble clenching their victories. Due to these teams recent successes, these sports which have not traditionally been spectator sports attract record crowds and give Westboro High something to cheer about.

Softball

The 1988 Varsity girls' softball team once again held their own in the league finishing the regular season at 12-4 and continuing into post-season play. However, the team suffered a disappointing loss in the first District game. After ten long innings, Westborough lost 6-5 to Quabbin High and ended the spring season at 12-5.

Although it was a winning season, the record does not show the talent of the players. Many games were lost by only one run. Strong pitching from present seniors Kim MacLean and Mary Gallagher led the team. Both pitchers worked hard, before, during, and after the season. The pitchers could not do it all, however, and were supported by a strong defense.

Coach LaDuke is very confident of another good season this year. Many of the starters, including both pitchers, present seniors Jen Manion and Kate Whitin, and present juniors Cindy Caldwell and Jane Gallagher will be returning for the '89 season.

▼Vanessa English puts all her effort into her swing as her teammates look on in complete amazement.

Baseball

The 1988 Westborough High School boys' baseball team did quite well and finished the season at 9-8. Unfortunately, the team missed qualifying for District play by one game.

The season had some interesting and, at times, frightening twists. For example, present senior, Steve MacLean was hit in the jaw while sliding into base. He was unconscious for a few minutes. Although he was taken to the hospital, Steve came back to finish the season.

Even though the team was very senior-oriented, seven underclassmen will be returning for the eighty-nine season. These returning members are optimistic that they, along with some new faces and talent, will be able to more than compensate for the loss of the seven seniors and qualify for Districts this year. Present seniors Steve Caddigan, Brian Moore, Eric Gilmore, Steve Maclean, Rob Grady, and Jeff Rumbaugh will be returning and leading the team this year.

Track and Field

The 1988 Girls' Track and Field Team finished the season with a 5-4 record while the seniorless Boys' Team ended at 3-6. The teams' records, however, are by no means any indication of the track season.

The key phrase at a track meet, as well as at practice, is "personal best." All members strive to beat their own best time or distance. The coaches give pointers to help each member make the most of their talents.

Although the highlights of each season are ususally unique to each member, there were a few which were shared by the whole team. Josh Cole, who had an all-around great season, nearly broke the school record for the long jump and also came in second at a district meet. The girls' 4x110 relay team had a record smashing season. Not only did they break the standing school record, they broke their own record as well. Kristen Montalbano, Nancy McTighe, Paula Pearson, and Jen Gorak set the record at 52.4 seconds, taking 1.1 seconds off the school record.

For the boys, the '88 season was a rebuilding one. The girls' team has lost a few key seniors. Overall, with the returning members, the '89 teams will be ones to be reckoned with.

Tennis

At the end of March the boys' and girls' 1988 tennis teams were ready for action. The problem was that the weather was not ready for them. Armed with tennis raquets, mittens, and layers of sweats, the teams headed out for practice. The arctic winds and subzero climate did not make for ideal tennis conditions. Both teams managed to survive, however.

The girls' team with their record of 10-3 headed for district play. Unfortunately, they were defeated in the second round, much to their dismay. The girls look forward to a strong season this year.

The boys' team had an impressive record also of 11-4. The team was led by dominant forces, Rick Allen and Mike LaPrade. The team has many excellent players with promising futures for the 1989 season.

Golf

The 1988 Golf Team had an extremely good season this past year. They finished with a record of 11-3, which qualified them for district play. The team won the league Medal Championship at the International Golf Course. Their season ended at the State Finals where the team placed tenth. This year's seniors, Keith Dorschel, Chris Ferrandino, Chris Stevens and Mike MacDougall will be returning for another fine season.

▲John Schaeffer tries to get as close to the hole as possible without looking too obvious.

◀Keith Dorschel gets into the swing of things.

Football

Looking back on this year's football team, many may wonder just how good it really was. Mr. Sharpe said it best when he stated that only nine points stood in the way of undefeated super bowl season. If it had not been for some bad luck early in the season, perhaps WHS would be celebrating another Division I Superbowl Championship.

The Rangers started the season slowly losing their first two games, but then they managed to rally and win their last five games to finish the year at 7-2-1, a record the guys should be proud of. According to the Telegram and Gazette, there were no real stars on the team. Ranger fans, however, know that there were stars on the team. Steve Caddigan courageously quarterbacked the offense and always seemed to deliver the big play. Because of the strong and powerful offensive line, the running backs were able to "pick their holes" and literally run over the opposition. Rangers posted three shut-outs and for a period of time were known to have the best defense in Central Mass. One of the best games of the season was a game in which the Ranger defense stood tall and prevailed over a talented Shrewsbury team, 7-6. The powerful offense combined with the strong defense made for a memorable last season for those 21 seniors who will not be returning next year.

Field Hockey

Under the coaching of Colleen Debish, the Westboro Field Hockey team has cruised to a two year record of thirty wins, two losses and five ties. Although there were no superstars on the team this year, each girl worked together to achieve their main goal — WINNING.

Winning was common to the girls but the wins were not always easy to come by. The team had to face some tough opponents and not all of them were women. Even though Fitchburg and Shrewsbury had at least one male player on their squads, Westboro could not be denied of victory. One goal the team was able to accomplish was a repeat of a previous team's trip to W.P.I. and the district final. Here, as before, Westboro came up short. However, the road to W.P.I.'s turf was extremely exciting. The girls won two difficult district games before facing Southbridge in the final.

Even though the girls wanted to win over Southbridge, they were still proud of their successful year.

Girls Soccer

This past year, the girls' soccer team won its first game in over two years. It was won against Assabet with a 4-0 score. Although it was the only win of the season, the team had a great season aggressively and enthusiastically. The team was led by co-captains Amy Cox and Alyson Morse. Nikki Stone and Alison Koroski, both seniors, contributed on and off the field. Chris Norkevicious, Kelli Skog, Jen Falotico, and Kathy Wilkins also contributed heavily to the season's playings. The girls' soccer program is still very young, and each year gains a few more eager players. With coaches John Lowbridge and John Hayes and the amount of time and effort put in by all the players, Westboro can be very proud of this year's team and look forward to a promising '89 season.

Soccer

The 1988/89 Boys Varsity Soccer team's enthusiasm is not evident from the season's record but, any spectator saw the dedication and determination in every player. Senior tri-captains Steve Adriaansen, Keith Dorschel, and Jeff Rumbaugh pulled the team together and kept them psyched up throughout the season.

Despite their unfortunate losses, the team managed to pull off three wins. One of which was a spectacular defeat over Auburn (16-1). Senior Jeff Joeckel and juniors Kevin Burke, Chris Gagnon, and Andy Harris displayed unending determination to achieve their personal bests in each game. Sophomores Tom Borghesi, Mitch Samuel and Rudy Soto also contributed tremendous efforts for the team and offer great hope for the '89 soccer season.

The potential for a successful season next fall is evident with the loss of only five seniors and many sophomores already on the varsity team. Junior varsity goalie Percie Riley will be taking over in net for the Rangers and looks quite promising.

Cross Country

It's 2:22 and the dismissal bell rings. A group of students rush downstairs, crowd the locker rooms, and search furiously for their running shorts and shoes. Cries of "Where's my other shoe?! How do I run with only one shoe?" ring among the slamming of locker doors and pouding of anxious feet. Neither rain, sleet, snow, nor mud will stop the cross-country teams from running and the distance does not vary with the oftentimes inclement weather. Practice mileage ranges from a warm-up jog of three miles to the ultimate eight-mile Uhlman-Southborough run. These kids overcome the pain and agony for the glory of racing. Whether starting on foreign ground or between the goalposts with football players on the practice field, these runners are a strong and determined bunch. But it's not all hard work and no play, thanks to the high spirits of such team leaders as Kate Thomas and Brad Masters. Buck-Buck and a certain "alert" which is sounded to warn fellow runners make up only a small part of the fun shared by the cross-country team members. Unfortunately, the silliness comes to an end with ski hill drills and the after effects, consisting of cuts and poison ivy. After running five to six miles and sprinting the ski hill two or three times, the teams are ready to wrap up another hard day's work. The runners head home, reminded by their coaches to keep the weight down and the determination high.

Volleyball

The success of the varsity volleyball team this year should not be looked at by their record but by the closeness of the team. Led by co-captains Sheri Conna and Kara Fitzpatrick, the team learned there was more to being a team than winning. The team had to adjust to a new coach this year, Paula Mattieu, and the loss of key players from last year. With their new coach, the team learned the importance of unity, team improvement, and personal improvement. The team accomplished their goal when they scored 10 points on Milford which had never been done by previous teams. Although the team had a losing record, they are very excited about next season and see better luck for the future.

Cheering

Cheering involves a lot more than keeping a team and fans spirited. The fall cheering season begins, as most other fall teams' seasons begin, with rigorous double sessions. Captains Kim Broadwell and Kathleen Wetzel led the tough workout. With new coach Karen Coffey, the girls pulled together to keep the spirits of the football team and fans high. Fall cheerleaders looked forward to being "GA's" (guardian angels) for the senior football players. This involved baking goodies and decorating the players' rooms before a game to psych them up. The winter cheerleaders were led by co-captains Jessica Remy and Kathleen Wetzel. During the basketball season, the Ranger cheerleaders also prepare for the Midland League Tournament where the girls get to cheer for themselves.

Gymnastics

The 1989 Girls' Gymnastics Team, coached by Liz MacDougall, once again proved that winning isn't everything. By having only six members on the team, five of which were freshmen, they strived to achieve their own personal goals and records. However, because the team was so small, it made it tough for the girls to compete against the larger teams in the league.

Contributing to the memorable season were freshman Danielle Tsouderos and sophomore Jen Kahler. Danielle Tsouderos was the high scorer this year, and by having previous training, she became a backbone for the young team. Jen Kahler also helped to lead the team in both skill and spirit. The season ended on a positive note as many of the girls did achieve the goals they were so determined to meet

Hockey

The first 6:00 a.m. practice on November 28th hit hard and was a shock to the system. But, it was also the start of a very successful Ranger hockey season. Westboro would finish 15-5 with a third straight trip to the state tournament.

Numbers, experience, talent, and the first two games were down this year, but determination and spirit were high. Led by tri-captains Dave Lanzetta, Keith Dorschel, and Mike Barrett, the Rangers bounced back with three straight victories. With excellent mid-season play, the boys won eight consecutive games, and qualified for the tournament by trouncing Grafton after losses to Auburn and Hudson. Hard work won close games against Nashoba, Wachusett, and North Middlesex. The scoring was led by Mike Barrett, 55 points, and Keith Dorschel, 52 points. Goaltender Chris Ferrandino and the defense did a super job of keeping opponents off the scoreboard. The Rangers are hoping to avenge last year's double overtime loss in the playoffs this year.

"We had passers, we had scorers, and we had hitters, but most importantly we didn't have quitters. That's how we got where we are. All and all, we shot, we passed, we kicked . . . !"
— Dave Lanzetta

"Constant hard work replaced the lack of experience and talent, and carried us through a great season. We showed what a team with desire can do." — Mike Barrett

Girls' Basketball

This year marked the beginning of a period of change for Westborough High School Girls' Basketball. Under the guidance of first-year varsity coach Rich Mongeau and assistant coach Sandy Robichaud, the girls' basketball team ended a drought of over a decade, winning the Midland League title.

The season started slowly, with a devastating loss in overtime to field hockey rival, Southbridge. The team also suffered several losses by less than a three-point margin. In addition, the players had to combat sprained ankles and severe illnesses ranging from bronchitis to meningitis. However, the team managed to pull together, accumulating a nine-game winning streak and clinching a co-title with Fitchburg.

"It was exciting to be a part of the team that finally won a Midland League title after over fifteen years." Kate Whitin

"As the season progressed, we pulled together more and more — we improved with every game." Lori Riedel

"We had our problems, but we were able to overcome them and dominate the league." Kim MacLean

▼ Kim Wright, along with some of her teammates, applauds the performance of those on the court.

▲ While Jane Gallagher looks on, Kim MacLean starts the game with a powerful tap.

▶ Kathy Wilkins keeps her eyes focused on the basket at all times.

Basketball

▼ "Fu" lifts himself and a Shrewsbury Colonial high off the ground.

This year's boys varsity basketball team had high hopes for the 88-89 season. Unfortunately, injuries, bad calls, and a great deal of bad luck prevented the Rangers from having the "dream season" they had predicted.

Westboro started off hot, winning their first two games over Southbridge and Auburn. Senior Eric Gilmore suffered a leg injury and was unable to play in the Wachusett game, contributing to the blow out WHS faced which sent the Rangers into a severe losing streak. During this time, Steven "Fu" Leighton was also injured.

When the injuries finally healed, the Rangers found themselves on the brink of elimination. The team regrouped with successful defeats over Clinton and Hudson but then lost to Algonquin in the end. Districts and the Clark Tournament were impossible.

Neild Montgomery and Eric Gilmore were catalysts of the Rangers "run and gun" style. Bob Crawford supplied outside shots, while "Fu", John Schaeffer, Jim Hayes, and Rob Grady fought the boards. Rob Lanza was the spark from the bench while John Honore and Matt Sarnieck pitched in with great hustle.

"If we avoided injuries, who knows how far we could have gone." Rob Lanza

"The last second loss to Shrewsbury took the wind out of our sail. If we had won that game, the rest of the season could have been different." John Honore

▲ Coach LaDuke and the rest of the bench protest a foul.

▶ The Rangers were upset by Shrewsbury in closing seconds.

people 89

People tend to have the most influence on our lives. In school, people are most important because they create the other aspects of school. There is a need for friends, classmates, teachers, teammates, coaches, group members, and advisors. Without people school would be an empty building.

Throughout their years here at Westborough High School, the students see many changes in the people with whom they come in contact. For instance, in the last four years, the students have welcomed a new principal, a new superintendent, a new assistant superintendent, various new teachers and, of course, new students. It has also been necessary to bid sad farewells to those who have left W.H.S.

Whether these people play major or minor roles in our lives, their comings and goings affect us. Whether it be the loss of a close friend or the change in policy by a new administration, we can feel their influence.

Administration

Dear Class of 1989:

A major change will take place in each of your lives as you graduate from Westborough High School on June 4, 1989. I encourage you to look to the future with optimism and be open to the many opportunities that will be available to you. Good Luck class of 1989.

Sincerely,
Maureen Zolubus
Principal

Dear Class of 1989:

Congratulations to the class of 1989. Your four years at Westborough High School have passed quickly. I hope you have enjoyed this moment in your life as much as I have in my contact with you. Always have a dream and be reliable and tirelessly persistent.

Best wishes,
Joseph Mewhiney

Dear Class of 1989:

One early morning last fall I drove by my old high school. For the sake of old times, I hugged the fence and peered through at the runners, remembering the good times I had at Lincoln High. The memories were especially poignant, for those years shaped me more than any other period of my life.

As you move on to a career or college, hold your Westborough High memories close to you. The knowledge you gained, the fun you had, the lessons you learned will come back again and again, shaping the person you will become.

The more you change, the more you will look back and smile.

With best wishes,
Eileen K. Gress
Superintendent

Dear Class of 1989:

I've heard wonderful things about this senior class from your advisor, Miss Farley. She stressed your unselfishness and concern for others as demonstrated through such activities as the Winter Carnival for elementary school students and the can drive for the Westborough Food Pantry.

You have compiled an outstanding record at an outstanding high school. The pride, self esteem and respect for others which are very evident in the class will be the key to transition to the next step. The fact that teachers recognize you as good caring people is even more important than the fact that they acknowledge you as rare academic students. You have everything going for you to succeed in your future pursuits.

As the new Assistant Superintendent, I am pleased to know that the town of Westborough has such fine graduates.

Yours truly,
Stephen P. Dlott

We're Watching You!

Everyone has an identifying quirk, unique phrase, or an aggravating habit in their personality. Our faculty is not exempt from this. Whether or not they are aware of it, we students have studied them almost as much as any assignment. We wish to take this time to thank them for the entertainment they have provided for us since day one. Special thanks go to . . .

— Mr. Labrie for his descriptive underlining.
— Mr. J for being that "swell guy" he knows he is.
— Mrs. Bellows for reminding us to type each line twice.
— Mr. Cerasoli for his constant renditions of "Gary Indiana".
— Mr. Kasierski for "no pink genes".
— Mr. Porter for his itemized detentions.
— Mr. Ottoson for our "lack" of essay experience.
— Mrs. Gore for her unique ability to hear only with her glasses on.
— Mr. Fredette for his cologne.
— Mrs. George for our birthday candles.
— Mr. Lightbody for avoiding "very serious errors".
— Ms. Ferrari for her "master plan" and tight schedules.
— Mr. Mullen for his dynamic and instructive sermons.
— Mr. Scenna for learning as much from class as we did.
— Mr. Sharpe for "looking up" to Mr. J.
— Mr. Markvenas for his "beautiful" results.
— Mr. Mongeau for his "flexibility" in passing out papers.
— Mr. Robichaud for being a kid at heart.
— Mrs. Holmes for her handling of depressing polynomials.
— Mr. McKay for his body language.
— Mr. Gravel for sharing his stories of the "old building".
— Ms. Spinney for her gum chewing detentions.
— Mr. Vital for allowing time for questions, comments, complaints, criticisms and cheap shots.

One of the numerous changes we've seen over the years at Westboro High has been the appearance of a few new faces in the faculty room. This year we were fortunate enough to welcome Miss Susan Connell to our English department.

Miss Connell has spent most of her life in Massachusetts. She graduated from Wachusett High School and University of Massachusetts at Amherst. She then received her Masters of Education at Harvard University. Her past teaching experiences included various assignments such as, early childhood and college classes.

When asked her first impressions of Westboro High, Miss Connell enthusiastically replied that it's an enjoyable place to work. She finds the English department very supportive of the students and takes pride in being a member of it.

Those students who weren't fortunate enough to have Miss Connell in the classroom this year may have met her at one of the many sporting events which she attended each season. Not only is she dedicated in school, but also out of school. Miss Connell has a great amount of enthusiasm and support when it comes to her students. She shows great interest in her students' activities outside of the classroom.

Amidst all her energetic participation in school activities, Miss Connell manages to find some time to pursue her outside interests, which include dancing, writing, and hiking.

Miss Connell is a terrific teacher and both the staff and students at Westboro High School welcome her and thank her for a great year!

Not too many people think that someday they will return to their own high school to teach in the same classrooms they once sat in as students. Miss Antonio is one of the exceptions. Westboro High School is her alma mater. Her interest in foreign language has been evident since her days as a student here. As a senior, Miss Antonio spent the school year in Chile as an exchange student. After graduating from Westboro High, she continued her studies at Framingham State College where she studied Spanish. Before she began teaching, Miss Antonio worked with abused Spanish children in Framingham. Following that she became a student teacher at Marlboro High School and then spent last year observing teaching at Westboro after which she received her certification to teach Spanish.

Now a Spanish teacher here, Miss Antonio conducts her classes with great enthusiasm and optimism. However, she would like to see Foreign Language classes conducted, as much as possible, in the language being taught, and eventually, conducted completely in that Language. Miss Antonio believes speaking the Language is the best way to learn it.

Miss Antonio has energetically jumped into the swing of Westboro High. She has taken on the role of advisor to the Freshman class and enjoys it very much. She meets with the officers during the activity periods to discuss fundraising ideas, such as car washes and a Spring Carnival. She promotes ways for the class to have fun, such as a possible class ski trip. Miss Antonio says her primary goal as advisor is to help unify the Freshman class.

Overall Miss Antonio finds the students here pleasant to work with, bright, and well-mannered. We welcome her here and wish her the best of luck!

We would like to take this opportunity to give a special thanks to our faculty. Not only have they taught us those necessary grammar rules, geometry proofs and scientific equations that we all swear that we will never use in "real life", but they have also educated us about ourselves. Every teacher we have at Westboro High School has had some influence on us no matter how great or small. We entered this school as mere Freshmen having no other identity than "low man on the totem pole". We were soon led, guided and sometimes even forced through our four years by our teachers. They introduced us to many subjects and ideas and from there each of us chose our own path to take. The teachers have not only encouraged our academic pursuits but supported our extracurricular activities as well. Many have been sighted at our athletic, music, and drama performances that occur outside of the regular school day. Many volunteer to be class advisors, activity advisors or coaches. We are a lucky student body to have such a dedicated group of teachers who aren't willing to turn their backs on their students. As the class of 1989 leaves this school and moves on to another phase in our lives, we all have more confidence in ourselves and a better understanding of who each of us are. For this we thank you!

The faculty just like the students has had to adjust to the many changes which have taken place in the high school in recent years. We have all heard students complaining or, at times, praising these changes but we rarely heard what the teachers thought about all that was happening. The yearbook staff had a chance to ask the teachers how they felt about these changes. Did they like the changes? Which ones were the best? Which were the worst? Were there other changes that they would like to see? And most important, did the faculty feel the school was headed in the right direction because of the changes?

From the teachers we questioned we found that many are very pleased with the new administration. They see a more relaxed atmosphere between the faculty and administrators. Teachers are excited that the new administration is willing to listen to suggestions and possible changes. The energy and new philosophies of the administrators is a well needed change that the teachers feel good about. On the other hand, some teachers don't completely agree with the removal of the daily activity period. A few suggested it should be returned on a daily basis and others suggested at least a weekly meeting is necessary. They commented that students are now less likely to come for extra help because of prior commitments afterschool. Some felt students should not have to limit their extracurricular activities to only one choice. Some of the faculty also feel the removal of the rotating schedule was not one of the changes for the better. They don't feel a non-rotating schedule is conducive to a good education. Both students and teachers are more alert in the morning than the afternoon. Students in afternoon classes are at a disadvantage since both the teachers and themselves are more tired and don't have teachers when they are "at their best".

Although many changes have taken place, there is always room for more. Teachers see the necessity for seniors to have more responsibilities and freedom than the underclassmen in order to prepare them for the more permissive atmosphere they will be exposed to in the years after high school. Therefore senior privileges are needed. Some suggested open campus for seniors while others thought seniors should just be allowed to do things more freely within the school. Academically, some teachers suggested a mandatory course in study skills should be started. This class would better prepare students for all of their classes and be very beneficial.

The faculty just as the students has adjusted to the many changes over the years. The overall attitude appears to be that the changes have indeed headed Westboro High School in the right direction for the future. With each new change, we strengthen our academic standards and teaching becomes a bit easier and more pleasant. After all don't we go to school to learn?

Goodbye Fred

Upon the return from the Holiday Break, the students of Westboro High began to miss Mrs. Howland paging "FRED!!" midperiod over the loudspeaker. After seventeen years of dedicated service to the school, Fred Remillard bid a sad farewell to the school. Over the years, Fred has witnessed a number of changes in the atmosphere and faculty of Westboro High, but he is positive about these changes describing them as a "180 degree turn for the better". But despite all these changes, one thing remains the same: Fred's cheerful disposition and helpful assistance has been an inspiration to us all. We would like to thank Fred for his kindness, patience, and hard work.

Fred plans to spend a few months in Maine and a few in Florida — a well-deserved vacation from the pandamonium of Westboro High. We'll miss Fred. He has been a friend and savior to many a distressed student whose locker was jammed and to frostbitten students when the heaters weren't working. So, thank you Fred for dedicating seventeen years of your life to making Westboro High a nicer place to be.

Class of 1992

Freshmen

The freshmen come in, scared to death, not knowing anyone and intimidated by everything. They do, however, quickly adjust to the pace of high school and learn that it is not quite as bad as they thought it would be.

There are many transitions which freshmen must undergo both academically and socially though they are usually met in stride. Their new courses require more work and preparation that those in junior high. Homework is now the rule rather than the exception. Once they learn to stay on their own balcony and eat on their own side of the cafeteria, freshmen are not usually harrassed too much by the upperclassmen.

The focus of a freshman girl's attention is usually on the latest gossip about who likes whom, in which freshman girls often mistake a senior guy's smile to be a proposal for marriage. The freshman boys, rather than keeping up on the current gossip, enjoy beating each other up while simultaneously making wild animal calls.

Next year they will return and watch next year's freshmen do the same thing.

Freshman Year

When the 1989 Yearbook Staff passed out a questionnaire for this year's freshman class to complete, we received some typical answers to some typical questions about the changes they've experienced upon entering high school. The point of the survey was to get some insight into their perception of Westboro High and hopefully obtain some good quotes from the Class of '92. To most of our questions, the responses were "yes," "no" and "sort of." In any case, this is what we learned.

The trasition from junior high to high school was hard academically but not socially. Most of the freshman said that they were not intimidated by any aspect of high school. Every now and then, however, we came upon a freshman who was scared of being tossed off the third floor balcony by a senior.

When we asked if they knew where room 325 was, most of the freshmen claimed they knew. For the one who answered, "Is there a room 325?" the answer is yes.

For the one who replied, "between rooms 324 and 326," your response is incorrect. The truth is that the Lecture Hall is room 325. Now, can you find room 200?

It was nice to find out that the Class of '92 has so easily adjusted to high school life and we hope they will enjoy the rest of their years at Westborough High School.

Sophomores

The sophomores return in the fall relieved that they are no longer the "low man on the totem pole." Though most seniors are still unable to distinguish them from the freshmen, they set out to make their mark on the school. Obstacles must be overcome throughout this year to assure them success both socially and academically. Dreaded driver ed classes must be tolerated before gaining the right to "cruise." Sophomores must learn to avoid the senior balcony to gain respect from upperclassmen. Hours of studying are a must to guarantee academic success in the important years ahead. Sophomore year also has its advantages. Sophomores can start to show their faces at social events without fear of being shunned by upperclassmen. Overall, sophomore year is the year that a class pulls together as one and takes pride in who they are.

Juniors

Junior year seems to be the beginning of life — physically, socially, and academically. Juniors return in the fall and the boys have grown taller and the girls have filled out. They are finally upperclassmen. Many have gotten their licenses over the summer. No longer must they "mooch" off of somebody. They are free to cruise. Of course it is not all fun. This is the year the pressure is on academically. Hours of studying is often a must for juniors. The dreaded SAT's are thrown at them which determine whether they go to Harvard or not. Much of the school gets wrapped up in the happenings of the junior class. Everybody's curious about who is taking who to the prom, or how they did on SAT's. Underclassmen idolize the junior class while seniors chuckle as they reminisce about the good and bad times accompanied with junior year.

Junior Year

Junior year can best be described as a roller coaster — with ups and downs the whole year through. Although juniors are upperclassmen, they are still not seniors. They do not have the senior privileges in school, and outside they are not always welcome at senior parties. They do, however, have the privilege of acting superior to the underclassmen. With the pride of being an upperclassman comes the pressure. Striving for good grades seems more important than in the past, since ranks are given out at the end of the year. The pressure to finish Driver's Ed, pass the driving test, and get a decent photo for your license increases as the days progress. Along with playing in the Powderpuff game and going to the Junior Prom come the dreaded SAT's. Being a junior is so close to being a senior, yet so far away.

SENIORS

Throughout the years spent in high school, students cannot wait until their senior year. For many, it signifies a coming of age, freedom, and independence. With these three advantages of adulthood comes responsibility. This is the year in which kids turn eighteen and are consequently eligible to vote and to be drafted. During senior year, futures are decided. Further education, military service, employment — the options are endless. These seniors have, hopefully, grown and matured enough during their secondary school years to be able to make sensible decisions about their futures. Senior year can be both exciting and tension-filled as future plans are made. It can also be sad to realize that friends will be going off in their own directions. But, most of all, seniors want to make their last year of high school the best. Seniors pull together to make their class the most spirited. They plan activities to involve the class as a whole instead of just one clique. It starts with the Junior Prom and moves on to breakfasts, skip days, powderpuff, the senior play and the Ball, only to name a few. All in all, it's the best of both worlds — time to be an adult and time to be a kid.

Most Changed

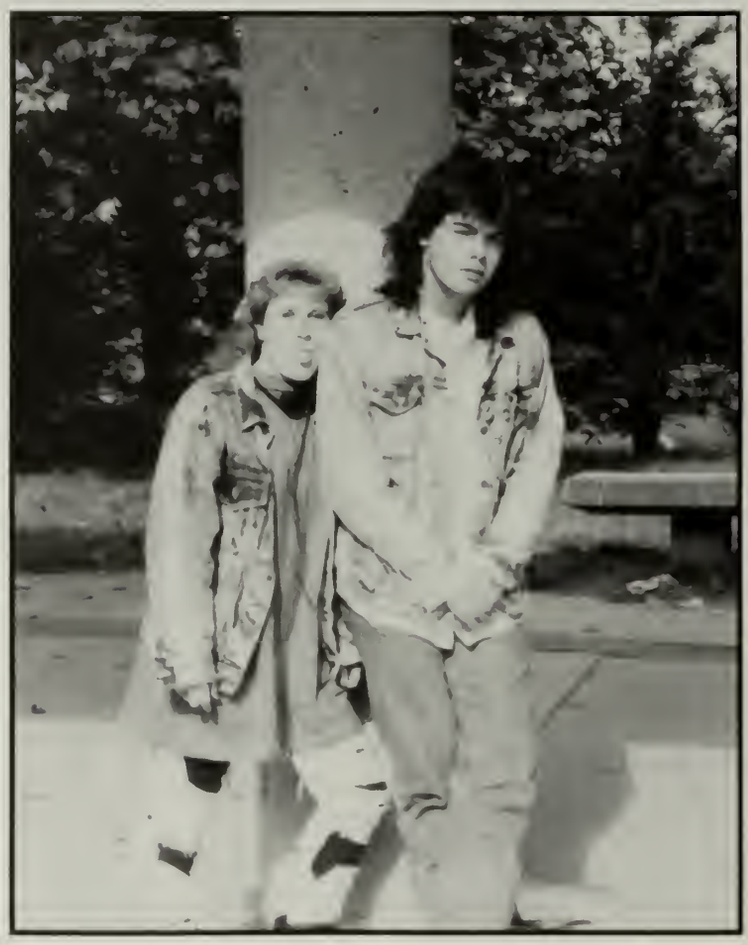
Jodi Thurber and John Gerard



High School represents a period of growth from teenager to adult. It is a time to search for one's own identity. This may mean changes in focus, interests, and attitudes. Jodi Thurber and John Gerard were voted "Most Changed" in the Class of 1989 superlative section. Why? Have they changed more than anyone else has? I asked John and Jodi if they agreed with the majority of voters.

One major change in the past four years of John's life has been his increased interest in music. Freshman year, John's main interest was sports. Although John still plays leisure sports to keep fit, he no longer participates in the school sponsored teams. His number one priority these days is his music. John had always wanted to play an instrument, but he did not have the opportunity to learn when he was younger. When John saved up his money and bought his first guitar, he did not imagine the impact it would have on his life. He took a few lessons to learn the basics and then he began to experiment on his own. He collaborated with friend Kevin Bushroe on song writing and from there formed the band, "Soldier's Cry."

Although Jodi's interests have shifted from after school sports to part-time jobs, she feels that the base of her change lies in attitude. Jodi believes that she has matured over the past four years in that she has learned to think for herself instead of letting others think for her. She is now comfortable asserting her ideas even if they differ from others' beliefs. Jodi is within a group made up of individuals who have different ideas and interests, but remain friends. They respect different ideas because they would like their own to be respected. Jodi no longer feels that she must conform to fit in, but she can fit in just being herself.

Both John and Jodi felt that they have changed, but they questioned whether they have changed more than the rest of the class. Granted their physical appearances — the style of their hair, their choice of clothes — and interests have changed, but that is only the surface. They may have been voted more changed from the change in appearance, yet there is something which lies underneath which brought about the visible changes. John and Jodi have matured, like the rest of us. They have discovered their true selves, found new interests and made new friends. This sounds like the story of many high school seniors. John's and Jodi's change in attitude has been reflected in every aspect of their lives. Perhaps "Most Changed" is inaccurate and would better be described as "Most Visibly Changed." There are, however, some people who don't seem to have changed one bit. You knew they would get a certain superlative back in first grade and, of course, they did. I guess some things will never change . . .

Our Formal Debut

For many, the excitement began ahead of time. February was tension- filled as requests for dates and painful rejections filtered through the grapevine. In the next few weeks, the girls scurried from boutique to boutique in search of the "perfect gown." The guys took a more casual approach and waited until the week before to rent their tuxes. Arriving in style was an important consideration. Couples hunted for others to share the cost of a limo or they borrowed their parents' car for the night.

Expectations filled the air as Indian Meadows was transformed into the "Roaring 20's." Black and white balloons, streamers, and posters were carefully hung as the committee cursed the approaching storm. All hoped that this was not a sign of how the evening would go.

Girls chatted nervously about afternoon hair and nail appointments. And, contrary to popular belief, the boys really did look forward to putting on their tuxedos. Corsages and boutonnieres were picked up, pictures were taken, and finally it was time to leave for the Prom.

The atmosphere was unique. For the first time our class was gathered together for an event catered especially to us. The last of the pictures were taken. Dinner came and went — then the magic happened. We took over the dance floor and loosened up to enjoy our favorite music.

▲Whether on or off the dance floor, most people had a great time. Here Kathy Rigsbee takes a breather.

Picking the Prom Queen temporarily stopped the festivities. The girls were herded around the room until a decision was made. The Court was chosen and posed for yet another picture. "Melt with You," our theme song, was played as the Queen, Court, and rest of us savored this special moment.

At 12 p.m., we sadly left with plans of the Cape already set. This night meant different things to each of us. For some it would be happily remembered. For others it may not have lived up to the high expectations. Regardless, it was an event we shared and survived — together!

Senior Year: The Dream

Mark Bean stays up late every night completing his homework assignments. Fortunately, he manages to find time to catch up on lost sleep. In these few moments, Mark dreams of the senior year which he has heard so much about. Ah yes, the perfect senior year: contracting the so-called senioritis which causes seniors to take only "sleaze" courses and studies . . . lounging on the senior balcony between every class . . . wandering around the halls without a care in the world . . . having nothing to worry about except parties . . . having plenty of leisure time . . . WHAT A LIFE!

▼Frustrated Mark Bean tries to do homework, prepare for SAT's and ACH's and choose the college where he will spend the next four years of his life.

▼Joe Fitzgerald puts in long hours at the Whiz.

▲Bob Crawford contemplates the essay he must write for his college applications.

And The Reality

Mark awakes with a start when Mrs. Howland calls "Fred" over the loud speaker. He begins to worry. He has so much to do. He needs to sort through all the college mail he has accumulated since sophomore year. After wading through it all and several trips to guidance, Mark must choose the right school for himself. At this point, taking a year off looks mighty tempting. When this is completed there are applications, interviews, and the dreaded essays. The SAT and Achievement tests must be taken. Finally there are financial aid forms and scholarship applications to fill out. This is only the beginning! While maintaining his academic standards, Mark must make the extracurricular section of his application look impressive. This means that in addition to schoolwork, he must participate in clubs, athletics, and community service. There is so little time left, yet hours must be put in at a job so that he can save for college. With so little leisure time and even less sleep, Mark wonders why senior year is viewed as being easy.

▶Worried about maintaining their excellent reputation, six Yearbook members diligently scrub to make sure the customers get their money's worth.

▼Taking a break from the action to warm up, Mike Barrett and Kathleen Wetzel huddle together and try to dry off a little.

▲Thanks to the clowning around of Nancy Repsher and Lori Riedel at the rotary and out front of the school, many cars were drawn in to support the yearbook.

▲Dave Wechsler chuckles as he is told he's not getting paid for his service.

▶A worried Mr. Moriarty stays out of the line of fire of the flying hoses.

Getting Our Feet Wet

On the morning of June 11, 1988, the members of the 1989 yearbook staff took buckets and sponges in hand for the annual Car Wash/Bake Sale. Spirits were high, Mr. Kaplan anticipated a large profit, while the staff couldn't wait for the opportunity to douse one another and steal cookies while no one was looking.

The weather was perfect, and cars were drawn in by the thousands (well almost) by our two clowns, Lori Riedel and Nancy Repsher. What followed was pandemonium. Sponges flew, buckets were thrown, hoses were sprayed (at people not cars). The editors, Jenn Hopkins, Linda Richards, and Caroline Judge began to wonder what they were getting themselves into. Mr. Kaplan began to wonder why he was yearbook advisor. The customers wondered why they didn't just pay $2.50 at the Shell station. But all in all, the Car Wash was a success. The staff got a chance to work together for the first time, and some well-needed funds were accumulated for the spectacular book we would begin to put together in the fall.

▲Customers received a shine two times better than expected when buddies Jen Lancaster and Rachel Irwin work together.

Changing the Guard

▼"They've locked the doors until we pay?!" Amy Bielski cries since she left her money in the car.

What everybody looks forward to — the first day of school. Well, not exactly, but the new seniors were ready to celebrate this not-so-great event. The class of 1989 took the traditional route to Abdow's for breakfast, in order to eat or to just see everyone after the summer, which was too short. Whatever the reason, the senior class was there and all set to rule Westborough High.

Once the seniors had finished socializing and stuffing their faces at Abdow's, the caravan of cars headed for the infamous Rotary. This was quite a noisy production — the horns could be heard everywhere and kids were shouting out of their car windows. After causing traffic to come to a standstill around the Rotary, the seniors decided it was time to make their presence known at school.

▲Yes, school really starts today! Disillusioned Mike LaPrade thought everybody was headed to the beach!

Armed with confetti, streamers, and plenty of spirit, the seniors assembled in the parking lot. Then they began the march to the long awaited Senior Balcony. The seniors piled onto the balcony and chanted "89". The class of 1989 was ready for a year filled with lots of senior activities, such as Senior Skip Days, the Ball, and the reason they have been here for the past four years — Graduation. The changing of the guard was now complete and no one was to get in the way of the new seniors.

▲Kate Thomas laughs at Lou Abladian's idea of her picking up the tab.

▲It's not often that we show our true senior pride, but when we do, we show it in a big way.

Class of 1989

Senior Class Officers: Vice President — Steven Tompkins. President — Jennifer Lancaster, Secretary — Amy Cox, and Treasurer — Michael Barrett

Senior year marks a change in outlook among the students. Graduation gradually transforms from dream to reality. Seniors are left to fit in all the work and growing up that must be accomplished before they move on to the "real world." As a result, this year tends to be one of cramming — scholastically, athletically, and socially.

The first half of senior year continues the academic pressure of junior year. First semester grades will form the last impression of them left on college admissions. Whether realistically or not, seniors effectively convince themselves that these grades will largely determine their futures and therefore try their best to get decent grades first semester.

In addition to academics, seniors realize that this is their last of participating on Ranger athletic teams. Many athletes will not continue to participate in sports in college and want to make their last season one to remember.

Socially, seniors anticipated the year to be fun-filled, stressless, and carefree. They soon realize first semester is far from this image and wait until second semester to loosen up and enjoy their last few months together as a class. Parties, beach trips, and the traditional graduation activities are just a few examples of how the class comes together senior year.

The class of 1989 is no exception to this course. Over the years at WHS we have accomplished much and anticipate senior year would bring the greatest accomplishments. As freshmen and sophomores we quietly existed in the school. As junior year arrived a change occurred and the class began to pull together. Through good and bad times we started being there for each other and we took pride in being a part of the class of '89. The Junior Talent Show never got off the ground but the success story behind our Junior Prom greatly outweighed that downfall. Though the road to the senior play was rocky at times, we never threw in the towel and we successfully pulled off the show. The Senior Ball, Class Trip, and Graduation weekend, our last impressions of Westborough High School will probably be the most memorable ones also.

June 4, 1989 marks the end of an era for us and the beginning of a new one. Hold the memories close to you and good luck to every member of the class of 1989.

While putting together this yearbook, I have spent a lot of time reflecting on the past four years at Westborough High School. Thinking of the changes which have taken place brought back many memories — some good and some bad, but all of them meaningful. We created this book in the hopes that, years from now, it will do the same for you.

We took time to write articles to accompany each set of pictures. Although you might not read these stories immediately after you receive the book, they are there for you to enjoy and to help non-WHS grads understand the significance of the pictures. The photos and articles, together, illustrate the changes we've seen and the fun times we've shared.

Jenn and I have worked hard on this yearbook since we were selected as editors in the spring of junior year. We are proud of this book and hope that you will be proud to show it to other people. We also hope that it gives an accurate account of the 1988-1989 school year at WHS.

I'd just like to take this opportunity to wish you good luck in the years to come. I hope that you keep this book to help you remember your years spent in high school.

Best wishes,

Linda Richards
— co-editor

This is the last page of our book and it is the place where Linda and I get to express our true feelings about our experience of putting this book together. It all seemed so easy last summer when we began to plan this book and learn how to physically put it together. I laughed when our yearbook rep. told us we needed to go to "yearbook camp" to be an editor but I went along with it. Upon returning home from our 4 day and 3 night workshop I began to worry about what I had jumped into. September came and Linda and I, along with 18 other staff members, trekked into room 301 (yearbook headquarters) full of enthusiasm. Once we all realized the time, energy, and work needed to put together a great book, we all started to get nervous. There were, of course, both good times and bad times that we all learned from. I thank God that the senior privledge of leaving 7th period went into affect after the yearbook was completed because I feared all of our staff members taking off at 1:30 and leaving all their work for Linda and I to do. Although I questioned why I did it at times, I am truly glad I stuck with it. We did it Linda and we did it good! I can only hope you all enjoy this book and that we (the staff) accomplished what we were suppose to in a yearbook — capturing the memories of this school year in the pictures and stories contained in the book.

Best wishes,
Jenn Hopkins
Co-editor

Dwight D. Eisenhower, 1953:

"Every gun that is made, every warship launched, every rocket fired, signifies in the final sense a theft from those who hunger and are not fed, those who are cold and are not clothed. The world in arms is not spending money alone; it is spending the sweat of its laborers, the genius of its scientists, the hopes of its children."
